

SwampHacks IV

January 19-21, 2018 | University of Florida

What is SwampHacks?

It's a 36 hour open coding event where students become creators. As the largest hackathon in Florida, SwampHacks taps into the talent of our own university as well as colleges in the area to serve as a nexus of innovation for the southeast. Here's what you have to gain from investing in our movement:

SwampHacks IV run-down

36 hours to hack | 4 members per team

SwampHacks III achievements

538 participants

81 projects

14 universities

Recruitment

The best and brightest students are attracted to our event with a drive to showcase their passion and skills. SwampHacks provides an alternative method to resume screenings and elevator pitches by giving companies a peek into what students are capable of.

Brand Exposure

Whether you're showing off technical aspects about your company or looking to introduce your company to the community, SwampHacks makes sure that your name is known. By leveraging our social media platforms and day-of events, you can let participants know about the ones who made our event possible!

Student Interaction

SwampHacks is more than just a means to an end. The entire design process of an idea is encapsulated at our event. Throughout 36 hours, you can watch students discover novel ways to use your products and create personal connections with our hackers through meaningful interactions.
